GREAT FETE FOR YANKS WILL BE SEPT. 9

Prominent Men Will Help Welcome Service Men at County Park

ASSOCIATION'S DRIVE TO BE AUG. 11 TO 16

Membership Fee of $1 Will Pay Expense of Medals For Big Affair

SANTA ANA is to be before President Wilson when he arranges his itinerary for his western tour. This is the word direct from Secretary J. P. Tumulty, just received by R. L. Bisby in response to an invitation to the president to visit Santa Ana on his tour, and if possible attend the welcome to returned soldiers to be extended at Orange county park on Sept. 9th, under the auspices of the Orange County War Service Recognition Association.

Bisby today is in receipt of the following letters, dated July 22: "My Dear Mr. Bisby: Allow me to thank you for your cordial invitation to the president to visit Santa Ana. I shall bring your letter to the attention of the president in connection with the preparation of the itinerary for his proposed tour."

That's getting "somewhere" at least—to get Santa Ana before the president for consideration in arranging his schedule. He will know that Santa Ana is on the map and fully alive to opportunities for entertaining distinguished personages.

Bisby sent out invitations to a number of men prominent throughout the United States and did not overlook French and English celebrities. The reply by Secretary Tumulty is the first received.

Borree May Attend

J. J. Borree, state adjutant general, has advised that the date is too far in advance for him to definitely accept an invitation, but that he will try and arrange his affairs so that he can come.

Captain Chauncey Schackford, commander of the submarine base at San Pedro, has accepted.

Major General Joseph E. Kuhn, commander of Camp Kearny, and a man who made a wonderful record during the war, will be here if he can possibly shape his plans to permit of his leaving the camp on September 9.

Major George H. Peabody, commanding March Field, hopes to be present.

Orange county's welcome to the heroes will be held on September 9. This is positive. Governor Stephens has not officially designated the day for observance throughout the state as a day for the people to demonstrate their feeling of gratitude to the boys who did and were ready to battle for the homeland. It has been generally understood, however, that he would make an official declaration, and hundreds of communities in the state have made plans for holding celebrations.

Efforts now are being made to have the governor set Saturday, September 13, as the day for general observance. Pressure is being brought to bear on him largely, it is believed, by San Francisco interests, for it is proposed to have a big Native Sons celebration there on that date.

September 9 Favored

"September 9 is a legal holiday in this state, celebrating the admission of California into the Union," said Bisby today. "The business houses of the smaller communities will observe the day, and business men and clerks will be at liberty for the day."

"Should the date be made on Saturday, September 13, the business houses would not close for the day, for it would be a serious inconvenience to patrons. It probably would be all right in the larger cities, where laborers might arrange to provide for the holiday, but it will not do in the smaller communities."

Plans are going ahead throughout the county for holding the big celebration and they will not be halted. The WASHINGTON, July 28.—Washington is about to lose one of the beauties of the diplomatic circle. She is Miss Olga Eschaurre of Chile who has been very popular in the capital since her arrival here. She has been seen much in smart society circles and particularly when the diplomatic folks entertained.

She has announced her engagement to wed Carlos Uribe, brother-in-law of Minister Ureia, of Colombia. The date for the wedding has not been announced.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—All of the foremost Republicans of the country have been or will be asked to outline to the Senate their views regarding reservations to the peace treaty, it was learned this afternoon. Former Senator Burton, George Wickerham and others have been or are to be asked to write out their ideas of reservations which would safeguard American interests beyond doubt without destroying the League of Nations or endangering the treaty.

FISHER NOT ANXIOUS TO TELL ABOUT WAR MEDALS

Santa Ana Soldier Who Is Decorated Twice For Valor Keeps Honor Quiet Until Official Records Arrive.

AWARDED the Medaille Militaire by the French and the Distinguished Service Cross by the Americans, Corporal Jacob M. Fisher of Santa Ana came home from war a few weeks ago, and told nobody anything about it.

With a war record that is exceptional, achievements in battle that marked him for decoration by two armies, three times wounded and once gassed, "Jake" Fisher did not want anyone to know anything about it because someone somewhere might think he was "blowing."

But the secret is out through no action of his own. In fact, it has become public record, for his discharge papers were placed at the recorder's office while Fisher was on a trip away from home.

Something of Fisher's war record drifted into Santa Ana from outside, from men who had been in the service and who knew something of that record from others than Fisher. These reports were borne out when the service men's historian looked up the record.

The Official Record.

Here is what the official record shows concerning Fisher:

"Enlisted April 6, 1917, at Santa Ana, Cal. Transferred to Co. L, 160th Inf., Sept. 15, 1917. Transferred to Co. H, 58th Inf., July 17, 1918, and to Co. D, 58th Inf., July 22, 1918. D. S. Cross, Oct. 3, 1918. Medaille Militaire, Sept. 15, 1918.

"Battles, engagements, skirmishes, expeditions: Chateau Thierry, July 29-Aug. 4, 1918. Verdun, Sept. 13-15, 1918. Argonne Forest, Sept. 26-Oct. 5, 1918.

Wounds received in service: Aug. 4, 1918, shrapnel. Sept. 15, shrapnel. Oct. 5, machine gun bullet and gas."

When Jacob Fisher attempted to keep his war record to himself, he attempted the impossible. The War Department, for instance, sends out printed statements showing why war medals were won.

Fisher was awarded the French medal at Verdun, and the D. S. C. in the Argonne Forest.

With Stamey Elliott.

He went to France with the first contingent of Co. L and was assigned to the Fifty-eighth Infantry. In the same company with Stamey Elliott of Santa Ana. He was within a few feet of Elliott when Elliott was wounded with machine gun bullets that brought death a few hours later. Elliott was killed in the fighting at

120 Fires Raging In U. S. Forests of Montana and Idaho

MISSOULA, Mont., July 28.—The total number of fires burning in the national forests of Montana and northern Idaho today were 120, according to a statement issued by the government forest service here.

A new fire on Marshall Creek in the Clearwater Forest is burning furiously. The fires in the Lolo and Missoula forests were slackening.

To date 380,000,000 feet of timber have been destroyed. Fires have burned over 126,861 acres, with damage to forest service timber amounting to $380,000 and to private timber of $450,000.

Three thousand men are engaged in fighting the fires.

ADMITS KILLING CHILD. POINTS OUT BODY

CHICAGO, July 28.—Thomas Fitzgerald pleaded today to be saved from the gallows. He had confessed to the murder of 6-year-old Janet Wilkinson. Breaking after eight hours of continuous grilling, in which applied psychological methods were used, Fitzgerald told the whole story, even taking detectives to the basement in the apartment where he lived and in the same building where lived the dead girl, and pointed out a coal pile where he had hidden the body.

"Do you want to lift her out?" asked a detective.

"Sure," he said. But his arms refused to move.

Fitzgerald, in a signed confession, asserted he offered the girl some candy as she tripped through the hallway and when she refused it he tried to lead her into his room. When she screamed, he said, he choked her to death.

Thousands of persons gathered outside the police station where Fitzgerald was kept, hissing and shouting "lynch him," "murder him," and "string him up."

Only then did he show any emotion. "Don't let them hang me," he pleaded.

Fitzgerald, who, his wife declared, is a mental defective, was a watchman at a residence hotel. He had been arrested before on complaints of mothers that he had annoyed their children.

EX-KAISER SEARCHING FOR NEW RESIDENCE

AMERONGEN, July 28.—The ex-kaiser seeks a new residence, it developed today, when it was learned that his agents have gone house hunting in the vicinity of Amerongen. Wilhelm desires to leave the Dutch castle of Count Benteinck, in which he is now living, it is stated.

TREATY SUPPORT ASKED

NEW YORK, July 28.—The American Defense Society has asked every senator to support the defensive treaty between the United States, France and Great Britain, it was announced here today.

WILSON MAY SEEK ADVICE TO AID NEW LEGISLATION

President Is Expected to Start West Wednesday of Next Week; Speeches Will Meet Attacks of Enemies

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Before States President Wilson will probably have a number of conferences with Democratic leaders in both senate and house, to advise him regarding important pending legislation.

During his absence the house will recess, but many committees will be whipping measures into shape. In the senate the treaty and league of nations debate will be continued.

The president's departure is now looked for about Wednesday of next week. In the ten days remaining before the start, Wilson is expected to make one or two visits to the capitol to meet leaders. His visit last Saturday was postponed due to absence of men he wished to see.

While he is "on the road" the president will keep in close touch with the situation in Washington and plans will be made to give him reports of the proceedings and speeches here, so he may keep his own speeches up to date and at the same time be in a position to advise administration leaders by telegraph.

Will See Democrats

Wilson was expected to see several Democratic congressmen today. No more conferences with Republican senators had been scheduled, so far as could be learned. However, there was no confirmation of rumors that these conferences had been definitely discontinued. One of the last to visit Wilson was Senator Spencer of Missouri who presented suggestions for five reservations to the covenant, based on former President Taft's suggestions, and which, it was later made known, the president did not regard with favor.

Some friends of the president insist he will make a statement before he starts west, to make absolutely clear his attitude toward reservations. The White House has let it be known during the last week that he was against any compromise but persistent rumors that he would agree to a program of interpretative reservations may make it expedient, it is believed, for him to put himself flatly on record.

Wilson's speeches will be roughly framed in the White House, it is said, and will take the form of statements of commission, which in the president's opinion, make an American acceptance of the league of nations and the peace treaty, as it stands, imperative.

These speeches will be varied to meet the verbal attacks of treaty foes in the capitol and to answer any new objection to various clauses.

According to present plans Wilson

Millionaire Gob In Navy To Stay Until Term Ends

Texan With Huge Income Must Remain 2 Years 5 Months More

NEW YORK, July 28.—If you were a "gob" in the United States Navy and suddenly found yourself a millionaire and had to serve two more years and five months of your term of enlistment, what would you do?

That is the question that is puzzling E. L. Perkins, a stoker on the U. S. S. Imperator. Perkins had bought a ranch in Texas and worked on it until he joined the navy. Then his father took over the property to look after until the son returned and shortly afterwards struck oil on the place.

The money began to roll in for the young "gob." His income is half a million dollars a year and increasing. But he has nearly two and a half more years to stay in the navy before he can get a real chance to spend much of that coin.

MOTHER WHO KILLED HER SON GIVEN YEAR

PITTSFIELD, Mass., July 28.—Mrs. Gladys C. Dunn, wife of Allan C. Dunn, on trial here for the murder of her three-year-old son, Allan, Jr., was sentenced to one year in the Berkshire county house of correction today when she unexpectedly pleaded guilty to the charge of manslaughter.

$30,000 DAMAGE BY FLAMES AT CATALINA

AVALON, Catalina Island, July 28.—Four business buildings were destroyed with a loss estimated today at $30,000, by a fire which broke out here late yesterday afternoon.

A call for fire apparatus was sent to Los Angeles, but before it could be answered a volunteer fire brigade made up of several hundred summer vacationists, had controlled the blaze, saving the town from threatened destruction.

RANSOM PAID FOR BOY

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Philip Thompson, American boy, kidnapped by Mexican bandits, thirty miles from Mexico City, has been released upon payment of the 1500 pesos demanded, the state department was advised today.

MAKE PACT SAFE FOR AMERICA IS AIM

Letter to Senator Hale of Maine, Suggests Three Vital Changes

NEED CONGRESS ORDER FOR USE OF FIGHTERS

Monroe Doctrine Protected By Proposed Clause In Allied Covenant

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Charles E. Hughes, in a letter to Senator Frederick Hale of Maine, made public today, declared in favor of a league of nations, but maintained that certain reservations and interpretations to the present covenant were necessary to protect American interests.

The interpretative reservations suggested by Hughes were:

1—That any nation, after giving the two years' notice of withdrawal shall cease to be a member of the league despite any charge of non-fulfillment of any international obligation, providing the withdrawal would not release the power from any pact or liability.

2—That question relating to immigration or import duties, when they do not affect any international engagement, should be regarded as matters of domestic policy and not within the jurisdiction of the league.

3—That the United States under Article XXI of the covenant (referring to the Monroe doctrine) does not relinquish any of its traditional attitude toward purely American questions and that the United States may prevent acquisition of any non-American power of any territory or control in the western hemisphere.

Authority of Congress

3—That the United States under Article X of the covenant does not assume any obligation to employ its army or navy in any expedition that is not authorized by congress.

Hughes' letter was in response to a communication from Hale, in which the latter asked the former supreme court justice for his opinion as to what reservations to the peace treaty and league covenant should be made, "to safeguard the interests of the country."

Hale said that "many of us are in favor of having the United States enter a league of nations, provided that in so doing we do not sacrifice the sovereignty or traditional policies of our country." He added that "we believe the proposed covenant now before the senate does make such a sacrifice."

"There is plain need for a league of nations," Hughes replied, "in order to provide for the adequate development of international law, for creating and maintaining organs of international justice and the machinery of conciliation and conference, and for giving effect to measures of international cooperation which from time to time may be agreed upon."

"It is manifest that every reasonable effort should be made to establish peace as promptly as possible and to bring about a condition in which Europe can resume its normal industrial activity."

Hughes said he perceived no reason "why these objects cannot be attained without sacrificing the essential interests of the United States" and suggested there was a "middle ground between aloofness and injurious commitments."

"One must take a light-hearted view of conditions in the world to assume that the proposed plan will guarantee peace," he said. "Rather, the proposed covenant should be returned as a mere beginning."

According to Hughes, "the prudent course would be to enter the proposed league with reservations of a reasonable character which should meet with ready assent."

Regarding the validity of reservations, Hughes said there was no need to assume that a reservation would lead to the complete failure of the treaty to compel a resumption of the peace conference, when the reservation leaves unimpaired the main provision.

COAST OIL COMPANY PROBE IS URGED

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Investigation of operations of Pacific Coast oil companies by the Federal Trade Commission is provided in a senate resolution introduced today by Senator Poindexter, Washington.

The resolution requests that every phase of the oil business, both producing and marketing, be gone into with particular reference to fuel oil.

In introducing the resolution, Poindexter declared that oil consumers on the Coast are required to pay $1.85 a barrel for fuel oil which is sold in New Orleans at 80 cents.

"Inasmuch as the Pacific Coast through its California fields produces more oil than it consumes, there is no excuse for the coast prices exceeding Atlantic or Gulf prices," Poindexter declared.

That the probe if ordered will have a direct bearing on the whole cost of living question was asserted by Poindexter, who said "fuel oil enters into the price of nearly every commodity."

"Consumers who have filed protests with me claim that the price of oil on the Pacific Coast is arbitrarily fixed by the Standard Oil Company of California," said Poindexter. "There is no real competition. The Standard's control has brought it enormous profits, enabling it to pay dividends in the last three years of 165 per cent. Last year's profit was $44,000,000 and an estimate based on the first six months shows the profits of 1919 will be millions higher. In the three years when the Standard has paid 165 per cent dividends, prices of fuel oil on the coast have advanced nearly three fold.

Poindexter's resolution directs the commission to pay particular attention to the Standard Oil, the Union Oil and the General Petroleum companies and to "report to the senate what, if any, combination in restraint of trade or unfair competition have existed, or do exist, and if any, the effect they have had on the market price of fuel oil, gasoline and other petroleum products."

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—Officials of the General Petroleum Company today denied there had been any combination to keep up oil prices on the Coast and attributed the difference in prices in New York and on the Coast to a difference in the gasoline content of California and Texas oils.

They said crude oil is selling on the Pacific Coast for $1.60 per barrel. Out of this, the General Petroleum Company said, $1.30 is paid producers for oil at the wells. 25 cents goes for transportation to tide water and 14 cents is government tax. The 165 per cent dividends of the Standard Oil were attributed to increased production in the Montebello field as well as to high prices.

LEAGUE CHANGES SUGGESTED BY C. E. HUGHES

Former Justice Would Make Covenant Safe For U. S. to Enter

visions of the covenant. He added that any nation making reservation "is not bound further than it agrees to be bound."

Article X Trouble Breeder

Referring to Article X as a "trouble breeder and not a peace maker," Hughes said:

"It is idle to attempt to commit free peoples to the making of war in an unknown contingency when such a war may be found to be clearly opposed to the dictates of justice."

"Of course, a limitation of the operation of Article X to a period of years would be preferable to the indefinite obligation proposed."

"But in my judgment it would be better that, if Article X is not eliminated, a reservation and interpretative statement should be adopted."

In addition to Article X, Hughes attacked Article I (right of withdrawal); Article XV (relating to domestic matters) and Article XXI (relating to the Monroe doctrine). He contended that "the descriptive phrase employed in Article X is inaccurate and the meaning of the article is far from clear."

Text of Resolution

The resolution suggested by Hughes regarding reservations reads as follows:

The Senate of the United States of America advises and consents to the ratification of said treaty with the following reservations and understandings as to its interpretation and effect to be made part of the instrument of ratification.

First. That whenever two years' notice of withdrawal from the League of Nations shall have been given, as provided in article I of the covenant, the power giving the notice shall cease to be a member of the league or subject to the obligations of the covenant of the league, at the time specified in the notice, notwithstanding any claim, charge or finding of the non-fulfillment of any international obligation or of any obligation under said covenant; provided, however, that such withdrawal shall not release the power from any debt or liability theretofore incurred.

Second. That questions relating to immigration or the imposition of such duties on imports where such questions do not arise from any international engagement, are questions of domestic policy and these and any other questions which according to international law are solely within the domestic jurisdiction, are not to be submitted for the consideration or action of the League of Nations or of any of its agencies.

Meaning of Article 21

Third. That the meaning of article XXI of the covenant of the League of Nations is that the United States of America does not relinquish its traditional attitude toward purely American questions, and is not required by the covenant to submit its policies regarding questions which it deems to be purely American questions, to the League of Nations or any of its agencies, and that the United States of America may oppose and prevent any acquisition by any non-American power by conquest, purchase or in any other manner of the territory, possession or control in the western hemisphere.

Fourth. That the meaning of article X of the covenant of the League of Nations is that the members of the league are not under any obligation to act in pursuance of said article except as they may decide to act upon the advice of the council of the league. The United States of America assumes no obligation under said article to undertake any military expedition, or to employ its armed forces on land or sea, unless such action is authorized by the Congress of the United States of America, which has exclusive authority to declare war or to determine whether there is any obligation on its part under said article and the means of action by which any such obligation shall be fulfilled.

Talk With Wilson

Senator Thomas, Colorado, said he discussed both the league covenant and peace treaty with the President and that the conversation gave him information on some points he did not clearly understand. Thomas declined to say whether he favors or opposes the President's program.

Senator Smith, Arizona, said he did not discuss the treaty with the President and declined to reveal the nature of their conversation.

Representative Upshaw and several other Georgia congressmen, invited the President to include Atlanta in his itinerary. Upshaw said the President told him he proposes to do all that his strength will allow and that he will come to Atlanta if it is possible for him to do so.

Representative Steenerson, Minnesota, and Charles L. Stevens, editor of the Warren Register, presented to the President a flag proposed for the League of Nations.

It contains a large blue star on a background of white. On the blue star principal powers. In the flag also is 26 white stars, representing the red cross, significant of the relief of suffering.

The flag was designed by Miss Hazel Berg, a 13-year-old school girl of Erskine, Minn. Its adoption is urged by various Minnesota organizations.

drive for membership in the Orange County War Service Association will be held from August 11 to 16, the date having been changed from the week of August 5 because it will be impossible for the manufacturers of the membership buttons to have them ready by that time.

The membership fee is to be $1 and from the fund raised in this manner will be paid all expenses of the big affair, including medals to be presented to men and women who bear credentials showing them to have been honorably discharged from the service.

Bisby has acquired a list of the names of many of the men and women and every individual on that list will receive a personal invitation from the committee to be at the park on that date.

Lieutenant Charles Swanner, who was appointed to secure the names of all service men, also is building up a list. Coupons are being run in various papers in the county for the soldier boys and their families to fill out and return to Swanner in the Farmers and Merchants' Savings Bank building.

It is the desire of the committee that every man and woman entitled to medals be at the park on the day of the celebration and service men or their relatives are urged to fill the coupons and send them in without delay. The coupon is printed in the Register today and will be every day for some time.

For the drive in Santa Ana, district chairmen are now actively engaged in working out the details for the work. Each community has been assigned a quota to raise. For Santa Ana, the amount is $5780.

Anaheim, the city where the association originated, already has prepared for the drive. The quota for Anaheim is $2650. A. B. McCord is the chairman there and committees have been appointed. At a meeting of the committee J. H. Whittaker was elected secretary and Mrs. Earl Abbey treasurer. Chairmen of committees were appointed as follows: Membership, Miss Sophia Rimpau; Entertainment, Professor Thomas Askin; Service Men, Mrs. Henry Adams; Transportation, M. E. Beebe; Girls to Present Badges, Mrs. O. A. Mullinix; Refreshments, Mrs. J. A. Caves, assisted by units of the Red Cross canteen. Two booths will be established for the receiving of memberships and Mrs. G. A. Gifford will have charge of these.

Santa Ana Man Decorated Twice For Valor on the Field of Battle

Chateau Thierry, where Fisher and Elliott went into the battle line July 29, 1918, a year ago tomorrow. Fisher fought there for seven days until he was wounded by shrapnel. At that time the Germans had all the advantage of war equipment. They were using artillery, hand grenades, rifles, machine guns, gas and liquid fire.

Fisher recovered from his wounds sufficiently to get out of the hospital and without the hospital's consent to climb into a truck and get back to his company.

The Americans were getting ready to take over a French sector at Verdun when on Sept. 13, Fisher was sent into the French positions to make maps for the use of the Americans.

While he was there the French made arrangements for going over the top for a raid to capture German prisoners and get what information they could. Fisher went along. He was not ordered to go, he just went on his own hook.

"What took place that caused the French to give you the Medaille Militaire?" was asked of Fisher this morning.

Bolsheviki Anger Him.

"I don't know why they did it," said Fisher, intimating as plainly as could be that he would like to have the interviewer go along and attend to his own business. "But I'll tell you something I do know something about, and that is that this country ought to do something about getting rid of all kinds of Bolsheviki and I. W. W's. When a man has been over there and has seen men killed, and then comes home and knows that disloyal things are being said, it makes his blood boil."

After a bit the conversation was brought back to the French military medal, which, by the way is no common medal. The Medaille Militaire is awarded only on rare occasions. The Croix de Guerre is common when compared to it.

The persistence of the reporter had its reward.

"It was just like this," finally said Fisher. "We were advancing when suddenly the German machine guns broke loose, and they were everlastingly shooting us up. I was scared. I certainly was. I was so scared that I decided to get it back to the French trenches, and I got to running and didn't know where I was running. I was so scared, and the first thing I knew I saw a dug-out, and I thought it was a French dug-out, and I dived into it. When I got to the bottom, I found it wasn't a French dug-out at all but a German dug-out, and there were four Germans standing in a row with their hands in the air yelling 'Kamerad.'

Told Them To Get Out.

"I got up courage enough to tell them to get out of there, and they marched up and I followed them. The French thought that was some stunt. It wasn't a stunt at all, it was the blindest accident I ever ran up against. While we were taking the prisoners back to the French trenches I was hit in the ribs by a chunk of shrapnel."

Needless to say, the French method of awarding a military medal is featured by a kiss on each cheek by a French general.

Fisher was in the fighting in the Argonne Forest for ten days before he was hit in the leg with an explosive bullet and was gassed. According to the records, the action upon which the awarding of a Distinguished Service Cross to the Santa Ana fighter was based was dated Oct. 3.

On that date a scouting party of eighteen men and a lieutenant was sent out to get information concerning the Germans. The enemy proved to be much closer than had previously been reported. Suddenly, the Germans at close range opened up with machine guns. Of the nineteen men, only four returned. Of the four who got back alive two were wounded. Fisher and another soldier carried in the lieutenant, who was badly wounded. The lieutenant and Fisher were awarded crosses.

Three machine gun bullets passed through the edge of Fisher's trousers. Largely Accidental.

"It is largely accidental, this getting of decorations," said Fisher. "I have seen men of my own squad who did things for which they ought to have been decorated a thousand times, and they never got the recognition just because what they did didn't happen to be seen by a superior officer. Perhaps things were happening so fast that what they did was not noticed. Then, again, in battle a man might go ahead and do the only thing he could do, and that act might develop into something noticeable, and he might be given a war cross. When I know what tremendous things some men did over there in battle, I don't see that I was entitled to be picked out for any special honors, and that is why I don't think anything needs to be said about the war crosses that I happened to get."

Fisher is spending a couple of months with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Fisher of 519 West Second street. He is to take a government course in vocational training as a newspaper illustrator.

Most of the speeches will be made on the eastward journey after the review of the Pacific fleet at San Francisco August 15, it is believed. Before returning to Washington, the president may stop for a few days at some resort, if Dr. Cary Gray, son considers he is over-taxing his strength.

While the senate was to hear several league speeches this week, the first order of business was the treaty with Columbia with regard to which Senator Lodge conferred with Secretary Lansing last week.

The house started a rush program of business to clear the way for recess.

The president had appointments scheduled today with these Democratic congressmen:

Senators Thompson, Florida; Johnson, South Dakota, and Smith, Arizona, and Representatives Hudspeth, Texas; Saunders, Virginia; Howard, Oklahoma; McKeown, Oklahoma, and Champ Clark, Missouri. He is to see Representatives Upshaw, Georgia and Steener, Minnesota.

CHIEF TAHAN TEACHES BOYS How to Build a Wickiup

BY CHIEF TAHAN
(Of Kiowa Indian Tribe)

Ah! I thought there was some one at the door, for the chief's ears are as wide as ever. Why, my boy, you seem to be all alone this time and I didn't expect anyone this rainy night, for the Thunderbird has spilt a whole lot of water out of the lake on his back as we Indians used to say when it was raining hard.

Sit right down there on that old panther skin by the fire and you'll soon be dry and warm. I'm mighty glad you came to see the chief tonight, for he was just thinking of the long ago when he was a boy—when there was one in the tribe that none of the others seemed to understand. He was just as fine and brave as any of them, but, somehow, he appeared to be different from all of the other boys. He hardly ever joined in the games and sports, and he came to believe that the other fellows didn't like him. He was alone most of the time, and because of that they gave him a nickname. They called him Pago-pago. That means One-one in our language—just because he was by himself so much.

One day One-one happened to come along in the woods where the others were playing. They had just found a hornet's nest and were stirring it up by shooting their arrows into it. Those hornets went at One-one furiously. But instead of running away which would cause the other fellows to laugh at him, he calmly wrapped his robe around him and walked slowly away, and they didn't laugh. He went away off down the creek where he got a handful of clay, plastered it over the lumps the hornets had made on his face and sat down to wait for them to heal; for clay was one of the things which the Medicine Man used to cure stings and snake bites.

The boy was pretty lonesome as he sat there watching an eagle floating around in the sky, and how he did wish that he was a man so that he could wear an eagle feather war bonnet—like the chief's. Suddenly there was a roll of thunder in the west. A hailstorm was coming and it would catch him before he got home. He jumped up and ran into the bush where he hustled around until he found a couple of bushes a little taller than himself and about four feet apart. He took hold of first one bush then the other near their tops, bent them till their tops met. Then he twisted the small branches of the bushes together until they held. With his knife he cut half a dozen bushes about the size of the others, sharpened the butt ends, stuck them into the ground so that with the other two they formed a circle about four feet across. He bent them over like the other two, one after another, and bound all of their tops together. That was the framework of his wickiup.

Working like a beaver, he cut small bushes, piled them on the top and around the sides of the frame, spread his robe over it all as far as it would go, tied the corners down to the poles and crawled inside before the hailstones began to beat down. He had seen his mother do that ever since he could remember and, of course, knew just how. But I've often thought that if One-one had lived here and belonged to a troop of Boy Scouts, he wouldn't have been lonely, and he wouldn't have made a wickiup—except just for fun.

ALLEGED SLAYER DEER PLENTIFUL NEW TURNS TO HIS BIBLE NEAR WHEELER SPRINGS

Reads Twenty-Third Psalm
While Cellmates Play
Cards Nearby

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—The quiet tread of a man walking the cold pavement of his jail was hardly audible above the laughter of trustees playing cards nearby.

Yet, steadily he walked back and forth across the narrow space allotted him and his cell mate. It was five steps one way and five steps back.

"The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want," he softly half read and half recited with a little Bible in his hand. A burst of ribald laughter from another cell interrupted the hearing, but not the reading.

"He restoreth my soul; He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness trod of His name's sake," and then there was a pause.

"Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for Thou art with me, Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me," the reading resumed.

It was Harry S. New, who three weeks ago drove to the police station in the gray of the morning with the dead body of Frieda Lesser, his twenty-year-old sweetheart in his automobile, and told the police that on the eve of their wedding he had killed the girl he loved.

The shadow of the gallows—the trial through the valley of death—have led New back to his childhood. He takes comfort in the lessons he learned in Sunday School and at his mother's knee, according to Jailor George Gallagher.

Through the day New sees only his mother, Mrs. Lulu Burger, and his devoted half-sister Edna Clancy. Scores of persons, mostly elderly women, ask to see him but they are denied. But when the setting sun dims the light which squeezes through the single barred window, he turns to his Bible and the Twenty-Third Psalm—the Psalm which the Rabbi read over the ashes of pretty Frieda Lesser.

Jim Pearce, Home For a Few Days, Lets Friends In
On the Dope

Deer are plentiful in the Ventura mountains near Wheeler Hot Springs, and the season opens next Friday.

This is the word that Jim Pearce brings from the Springs—and Jim ought to know. Pearce has been at the springs for six weeks, as assistant manager at the store there, and with his wife is now home for a two or three day stay.

Pearce was formerly owner of the Santa Ana Vulcanizing and Remounting works, and disposed of the business because of the condition of his teeth. Since that time he has been devoting himself to regaining his health and his appearance today indicates that he is making a success of it. Six weeks at Hot Springs have made a wonderful change and he may now be almost classed as fat.

"There is going to be good sport when the deer season opens," said Pearce this morning, "and I would like to see some of my Santa Ana friends get in on the field while it is fresh! I have been over the mountains and I know that the deer are there."

Wheeler Springs are about 130 miles from Santa Ana, the road being all paved except about eight miles, which is good mountain road. Parties going to the place leave the boulevard at Ojai Junction, after passing through Ventura.

What Causes Wrinkles and Crow's-Feet?

Personal appearance and cultured grace are the two elements which determine the social standing of a woman or a man.

Every social obligation is a demand on your personal appearance.

In considering this all important question of appearance it is well to remember that eye glasses play as big a part as clothes.

Prolonged eyestrain causes wrinkles and "crow's-feet." A strained, anxious, tired, drawn countenance is a common result.

If you need glasses, or if the glasses you now wear are not an asset to your appearance, call and let us show you what a little understanding of this subject will do for you.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Quanton of Anaheim are highly gratified over the rating of their son Dale at the naval academy at Annapolis. Out of a class of 820 he stands No. 13, and stands second in the class of naval engineering and naval construction. They received a letter from him last evening that was written in Panama. He is with the naval cadets on their annual summer cruise and he said they were leaving Panama for the U. S. via Cuba. He will arrive here about Sept. 5 for a short visit, returning to Annapolis October first.

Mathilda Vogel of Los Angeles, has purchased the Collins Castle on Collins Isle, Newport Bay. Papers in the deal are now passing. At the time they were constructed the castle and grounds were very attractive. They have been neglected in recent years, but still are in pretty fair condition. It is not known whether Mrs. Vogel contemplates extensive improvements.

The Wilson Certified Club of the Wilson Company, Los Angeles, numbering 150 people, passed a jolly day at Seal Beach yesterday. The club holds monthly entertaining meetings and yesterday was the monthly event, with a big picnic day on the beach. There were swimming races, a baseball game and other forms of entertainment. The entertainment committee consisted of L. A. McGuire, Jay Summer and W. H. McGinnis. D. Moog, manager of the plant, and Sidney R. Dickinson, salesmanager, were in the party. A box match and suit case race were other features, the suit case race proving amusing. The contestant ran a short distance put on the contents of the case and returned to point of starting. The winner did the stunt in 22 seconds.

Amazement at the development which has taken place even in the last year or two on the Fairview Farms tract on the Newport Mesa was expressed yesterday by J. J. Conrad, editor of the Huntington Beach News, and Mr. Turner of Turner Brothers, Huntington Beach merchants, during a visit yesterday afternoon to the George Hall ranch. Conrad was accompanied by his wife and daughter and Turner by his sister and mother.

CALL FOR ACTION

Roads of the state and county are being battered to pieces by heavy trucking.

Pavement that was laid five years ago and then appeared fully adequate for all traffic it might ever be called upon to bear, is beginning to go to pieces under a continuous and increasing traffic in hauling probably now in volume a hundred to one what it was six years ago.

Freight hauling between points in Southern California that used to be done almost entirely by rail is now done over paved roads.

Freighting over paved roads has come to be a big business and an important business, important not only to those engaged in it, but also to its patrons. When freighting is done by rail, those who are accommodated thereby furnish the money for keeping up the railroad. When freighting is done over the highways, those who are accommodated thereby do not furnish the money for keeping up the paved roads. The taxpayers pay the repair bills.

There has been a strong movement toward increasing trucking charges by state and counties so that there may be some adequate compensation secured for the use of the highways. That is all very well, but what troubles most right now is the fact that the trucking is actually destroying much pavement already down. Those engaged in heavy trucking are destroying thousands of dollars' worth of roads every month, and no fees that state or county can charge and collect or that the trucking companies can afford to pay will prove adequate compensation for the damage done, being done and to be done by heavy trucking.

Road authorities cannot very well sit by and let the work of demolition go on. Something has to be done about it, and done about it in a hurry. For the temporary protection of the roads, the first step should be to reduce the maximum load that a truck may legally carry. At present the state allows a maximum load of 23,000 pounds, which is more than it ought to be. Little effort seems to have been made in the state to enforce the load law. According to report, loads of 28,000 pounds have been hauled through the Santa Ana canyon almost daily.

Both state and county have tire-width laws. The county requires an inch of tire for each 600 pounds carried. That law was passed primarily as a law to prevent the cutting of the protective surface. But it is not the surface that is causing road officials worry right now. It is the base. The continual jarring of extremely heavy loads has developed the fact that the bases that engineers a few years ago declared to be ample for all traffic then known are not heavy enough for today's traffic.

There is no method of inspection of loads. It is declared to be true and probably is true that many trucking firms from outside Orange county make no pretense at staying within the law's limitations. So far as the Register is able to determine, local trucking firms are following the law.

There should be a determined effort to stop over-loading. Violators of the law should be given ample doses of Judge Cox's Specific, highly recommended for getting results. Perhaps, too, something could be done by limiting heavy trucking to certain highways, selecting those that could stand the strain.

Most assuredly one thing is true, and that is that our present roads are not going to stand up under their present usage. Another thing that might as well be stated and recognized is that there is a big public demand for highway trucking. Delivery is much quicker, more direct and more satisfactory by trucks than by rail. Moreover, the railroads do not seem to care much for short haul business in Southern California. At least, the quality of service given by the railroads for that kind of business does not indicate any great anxiety to get or hold it. Instead of decreasing, heavy trucking, left alone, will increase rapidly, and the strain upon the roads will be doubled, rather than lessened in the slightest.

Since the roads will not stand the usage, since heavy trucking is here to stay, are we not squarely up against the necessity of re-building a lot of pavement, re-building possibly by making the old pavement a base for new roads, as has already been done in this county near one or two of the sugar factories, where hauling was especially disastrous?

Whatever answer may be given by the state and county road authorities to that question, certainly something must be done to strengthen the roads or reduce the demands made upon them.

THE PRESIDENT OF IRELAND

Eamonn De Valera—rather a French name for an alleged Irishman—is perambulating the country, claiming to be President of an Irish republic, accepting banquets and receptions from Hibernian societies, and seeking official recognition from federal, state, county and city officers.

Monsieur De Valera is engaged in a work of mischief in which he ought not to be encouraged. His recognition as executive of the alleged "republic of Ireland" by United States officials, would be an act of unfriendliness to Great Britain not consistent with our friendly relations with her.

The crime of England, for which Irishmen seek separation from her, was a crime committed in former centuries. A hundred years ago an Irish Catholic could not be a commissioned officer in the British army or navy or hold a judicial office. He could not acquire title to land by purchase or inheritance, or occupy land except as a tenant, or have his children educated in a Catholic school or by a Catholic priest, or make above a certain profit as a tenant farmer, or engage in certain kinds of manufacturing industry.

Said an American tourist in Ireland a few years ago to a fellow passenger on the train between Queens-town and Dublin: "What does England do to you to make you hate her so? Not what did she do a hundred years ago, but what does she do now? What are your present grievances?"

"I don't hate her," was the response. "I'm simply wishing that she won't miss any harm that is coming to her. In former days she took away everything else in the world from us, and now, bad luck to her, she is taking away our grievances. Dan O'Connell procured Catholic emancipation, and Gladstone disestablished the Irish church, and all discriminating laws against us have been repealed by Parliament, until we haven't cause for a ruction fight, let alone a revolution. Sure, the English politician that could find an Irish grievance to redress would have his fortune made."

The temper of the British Parliament has been for years in favor of giving Ireland a local legislature. But Ireland herself protests against this, for the north of Ireland does not wish to have laws made by the south of Ireland, and Connaught protests against being legislated for by Ulster.

An Irish republic is, under present conditions, an iridescent dream. Sensible Irish-Americans know it, and while they may welcome De Valera with dinners and speeches and small gifts of cash, they will not encourage official recognition of him by the United States.

If Roosevelt Knows

Stockton Record
If the dead know what is transpiring here in the earth life they loved and left, it must be vastly amusing to Roosevelt to have men guessing and asserting what he would say about the treaty if he were here. Some have quoted him as being for a treaty; others have guessed he would be against the treaty.

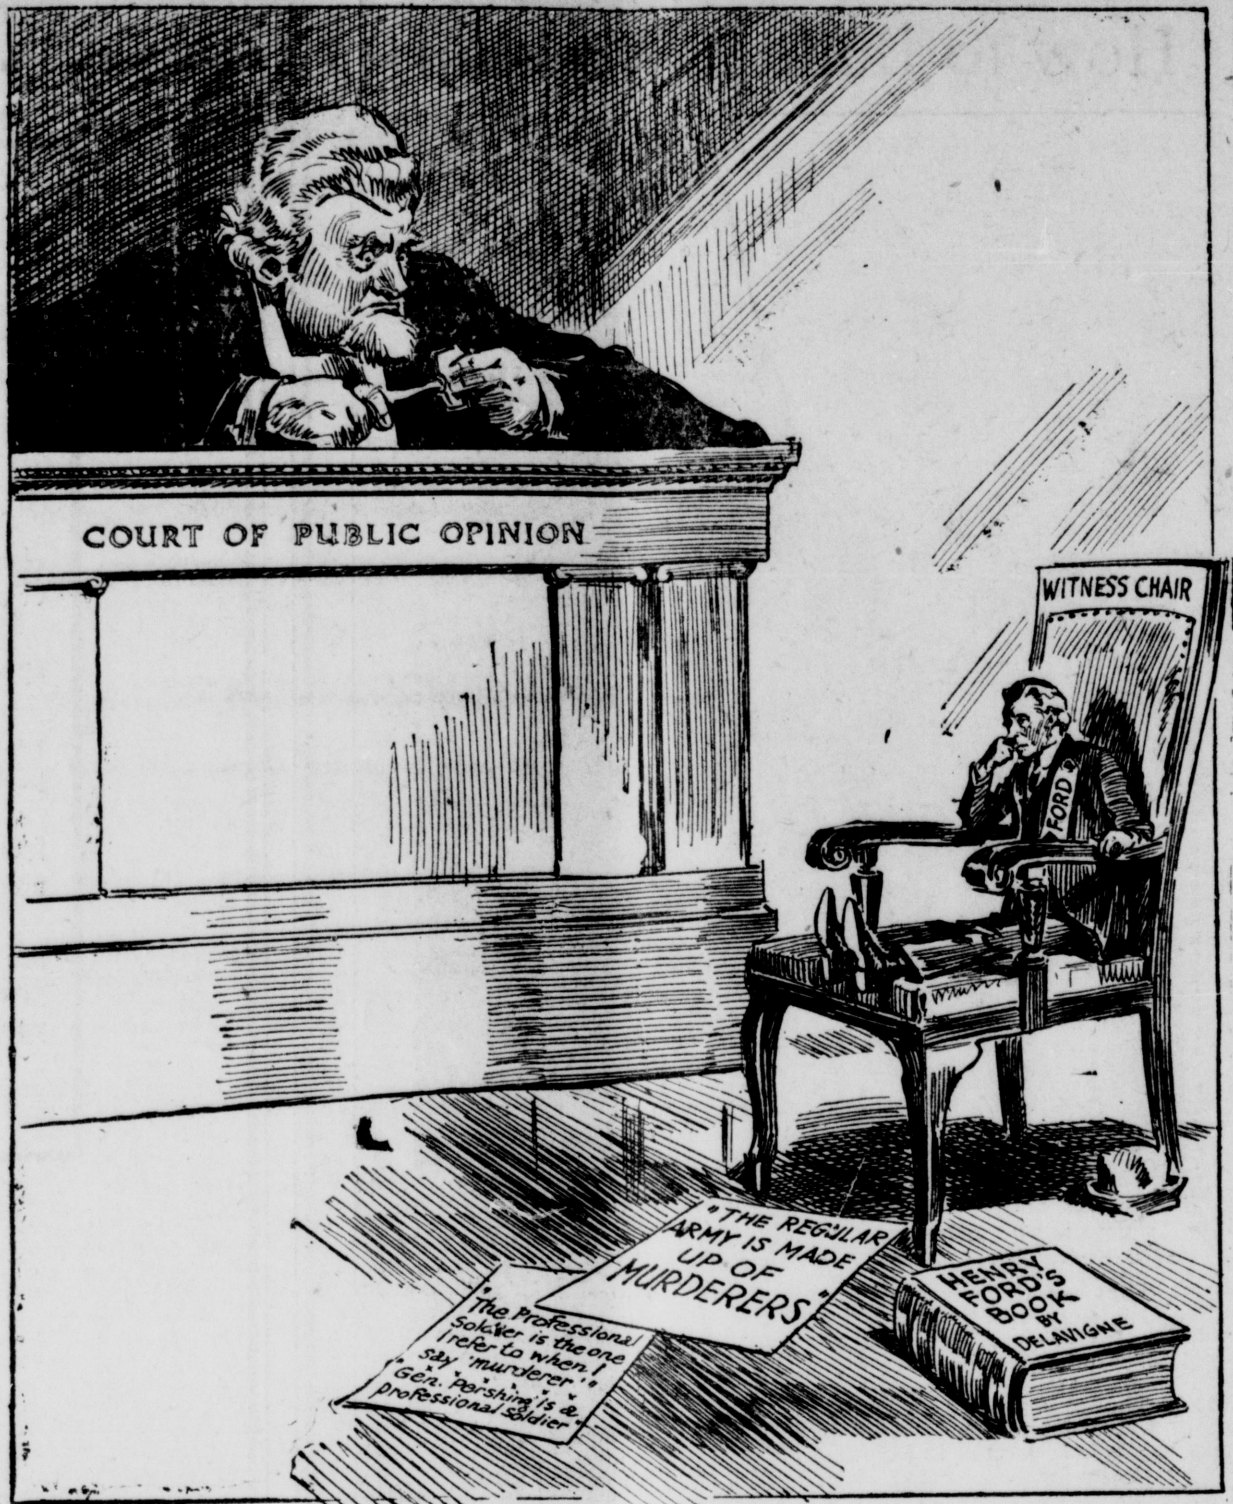

If there ever was a man on earth concerning whom it were futile to "guess" it was Teddy. The thing we all know about him is that he would have gone to the very bottom of "a" treaty or "the" treaty and would express himself about it without fear or favor in words as hard as cannon balls. You could take them or leave them, but you wouldn't have any doubt about where he stood. If one must believe the things that even his former enemies said about him after he was dead, none would have doubted, either, his clearness of vision, his honest Americanism in whatever he said, though the saying might be undiplomatic and carry a cudgel with it.

Perhaps it is the greatest compliment men ever paid him that they stand at this crisis in world affairs and wonder what Roosevelt would have said.

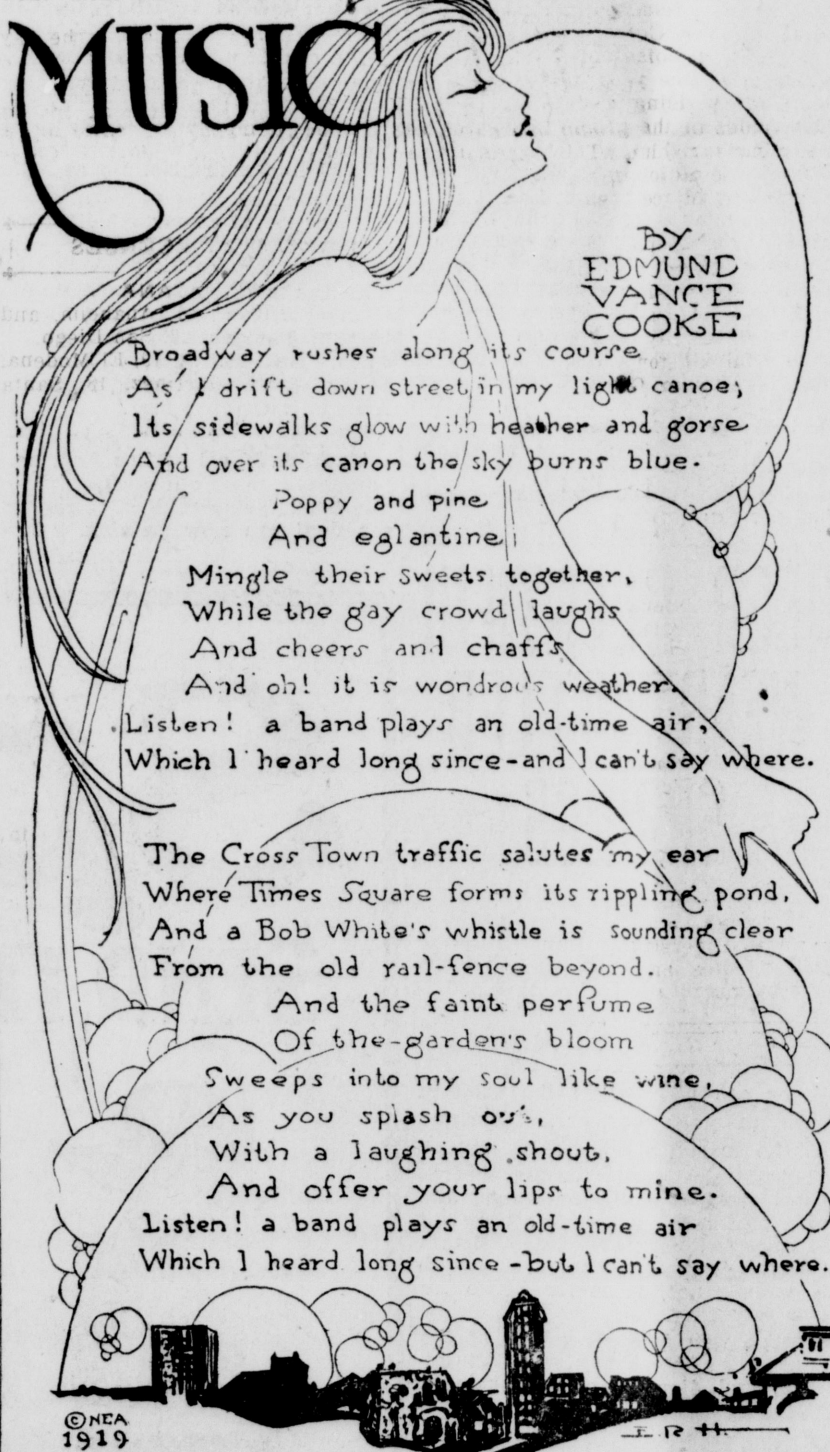

Renter's Rhapsody

T. M. Griffith, in "Life"
I am a hapless nomad.
I am a despairing wanderer, an immitigable peregrinator, a pilgrim or a progressless path.
A bird of passage flitting from Whence to Whither and never knowing Wherefore.
A tourist of cities, an explorer of homeless houses, a fugitive Jehu.
An enforced excursionist, a perambulating vagabondia incarnate.
A peripatetic home bound, a somnambulist in the night of dissatisfaction.
A woganless gypsy, a tentless Arab, a Bohemian without a rendezvous.
I am a hardened, hopeless voyager through a melancholy life.
A visionless Merlin following an invisible Gleam.
I am what humanity rightfully calls a benighted, forlorn and incorrigible "enfant perdu."
Yea, all these am I, and more than these—I am a renter.

Broadway rushes along its course
As I drift down street in my light canoe;
Its sidewalks glow with heather and gorse
And over its canon the sky burns blue.
Poppy and pine
And eglantine
Mingle their sweets together,
While the gay crowd laughs
And cheers and chaffs
And oh! it is wondrous weather.
Listen! a band plays an old-time air,
Which I heard long since—and I can't say where.
The Cross Town traffic salutes my ear
Where Times Square forms its rippling pond.
And a Bob White's whistle is sounding clear
From the old rail-fence beyond.
And the faint perfume
Of the garden's bloom
Sweeps into my soul like wine,
As you splash out,
With a laughing shout,
And offer your lips to mine.
Listen! a band plays an old-time air
Which I heard long since—but I can't say where.

Jog Along Old World

(From Brea Progress)

The statement is luridly made that there are twenty-three wars in progress just now but do not let that unduly disturb you. After all they are minor disturbances compared with the cataclysm just passed. Of course the hysterical will continue to cry out but any excitement causes some people to lose their heads, so there is all the more reason for you to keep sane. In a great fire it is the cool, unexcited firemen who put out the blaze and not the shrieking, bewildered onlookers. Remember the old world might be likened to a monster cauldron of soap or tar under which a gigantic fire has blazed furiously for four years. The fire has now been drawn, but you must expect the cauldron to seethe and bubble for some time. Of course some of the bubbles seem to grow pretty big, but as they swell up you know they will burst. And Time, the old healer and pacifier, is getting in his work. Even the super-emotional will calm down one of these days and get a better perspective. Be calm, and patient. All will be well with this old, battered world of ours.

HE juggled with a dingy lump of coal. And out there came the gorgeous red and blue, Bright greens and yellows (dyes of every hue Unrolled before us like a vivid scroll). And perfumes sweet that satisfy the soul. Then his enchanted wand he waved and drew Pure gold from ash heaps, and where nothing grew Called fields of waving corn. He maked whole With healing balms or smites with instant death; The earth, the air, the sea he conquereth. But with no weapons of the common sort. (He wields the test tube, crucible, retort). Yet, at his magic, vallant armies flee, Or, stricken, fall 'fore his wizardry. —Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Famous Musicians Coming

Los Angeles is getting to be more and more of a musical as well as art center. The advantages the city has to offer are made the most of by the local people, and every year they look forward to the opening of the Philharmonic season. An announcement which comes from there, and which will be of great interest to the students and music-loving part of Santa Ana, is that which gives the schedule of artists who will appear during the winter.

Through Manager L. E. Behymer it was made known recently that the opening concert was dated for October 21, with Lambert Murphy, the American tenor, and Merle Alcock, contralto, in joint recital. The course will end in May with Gail-Curci.

The singers will include, in addition to these two, Helen Stanley, Sophie Braslau and Carolina Lazzari, contraltos from the Metropolitan; Luisa Tetrazzini, Ernestine Schumann-Heink, Florence Macbeth, and Stracchari, the latest Italian tenor favorite. The pianists will include Cortot, the distinguished French player who was heard last year as soloist with the French symphony; Rudolph Ganz and Leo Ornstein, and Jacques Thibaud. The novelties will include a special performance of the French theater players and the Duncans dancers with George Copeland at the piano. The string ensembles will include the Minneapolis Symphony and the Flonzaley Quartet.

Three pianists, representing three widely different types of playing, will be soloists with the Philharmonic Symphony orchestra—Rudolph Ganz, Leo Ornstein and Decidur Vesci, Ganz is at present in Switzerland, Ornstein enjoying his new home in the White mountains, while Vesci is summering in Mill Valley, California.

Helen Stanley, soprano, and Carolina Lazzari, contralto, both Americans, will be the vocal soloists, while Albert Spalding, just returned from service abroad, will with the concertmaster, yet to be chosen, provide the lovers of the violin with pleasure.

For Returned Service Men Among the most delightful of all summer events was the picnic supper and dance given by Dr. Peryl Magill, Miss Julia Magill and several of their friends for a large number of returned service men Saturday evening at Orange County Park.

The complete informality of the occasion made it one of the jolliest of its kind and many of the men, who had been overseas for the past year had not seen each other since enlisting. Several had seen duty in the front line trenches and in the Argonne, but their experiences were forgotten entirely and they gave themselves up to the full enjoyment of every minute.

One of the boys had a pleasant surprise during the evening when he ran across an acquaintance made in France. It is a good illustration of the friends the boys will have all over the country.

The fun was started at 6:30 with a picnic supper and Dyster's orchestra furnished music for dancing before, between and after the "demonstrations" of the good things prepared for their enjoyment.

Orange County Park is an ideal place to go for any kind of fun and the pleasures it has to offer are enhanced by the courteous treatment always given by Fred Seifert, custodian of the park.

The service men in whose honor the evening was planned and their friends include: Mrs. Al Priess, Misses Kate Pohndorf, Marion Scudder, Ethel Cole, Jeannette Magill, Dora Harris, Cecil Imphross, Georgia Tournat, Stella Tournat, Mildred Harper, Lila Crane, Fern Hill, Nell Turner, McMillan, Julia Magill, and Dr. Peryl Magill; Al Priess, Henry Pohndorf, Henry Klausmeyer, Hugh Perry, Arthur Gowdy, Jack Trendle, Bob Emery, Tom Scudder, Waldo Tournat, Wilbur Harper, Francis Westgate, James Magill, Victor Woodman, Louie Bowler, From Los Angeles: Fred Cox, Gordon Wolfe, Mr. Berich, Helen Cox, Rena Cox, Lillie Haase, Hazel Simpson, Goldie Matthews, Laurie Dolphine, Miss Galbrieth, Miss French.

Surprise Friends. Friends of the J. D. Hutton family, formerly residents of Greenville, will be interested in the following clipping taken from the Anaheim Herald: "That surprises never come singly was proven again Friday evening at the J. D. Hutton home on South Palm street. Miss Emma Hutton had invited a number of her classmates of the eighth grade in for an evening affair and just as her guests were arriving, her brother William Hutton, better known to all of his friends as 'Billy,' accompanied by his bride and four friends, drove up and announced that they had just been married in Santa Ana.

"In the afternoon 'Billy' and Miss Anna Walters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Walters of West Common-wealth avenue, Fullerton, and accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Otto Kientz, Miss Maude Gallagher and Paul Neja slipped quietly over to Santa Ana and procuring the necessary license were united in marriage by Rev. H. E. Hoare, in the parsonage of the Emmanuel Baptist church, returning to the home of the groom just in time for the party given by his sister, Miss Emma.

"Congratulations followed and the evening was merrily spent in dancing, music, games and singing. The hostess was just beginning to serve refreshments of ice cream and cake to her guests, who included besides the bride party, Florence Smith, Leora Heaton, Mary Abbott, Rena Kelsey, Homer Wallace, Roscoe Phillips, J. D. Hutton, Jr., Ned Cornelius and Vernon Mills, when noises of various descriptions filled the yard outside. The news of the wedding had leaked out and 17 friends of the groom had gathered to charivari him. They were invited into the adjoining large living room and served ice cream, cake and cigars.

"Both young people are very popular among their associates. The groom has been an employee of the Fullerton Ice Company for some time. The Hutton family have been residents of Anaheim for about two years, coming here from Greenville, where they had resided for a number of years."

NEW YORK, July 28.—Former President Taft telegraphed the United Press today declaring that his correspondence suggesting reservations to the peace treaty had been made public without his knowledge, authorization or consent. He added he was sure that neither Chairman Hays of the Republican National Committee nor Senators McCumber, Colt nor McNary to whom the letters were sent had consented to their publication. He said the letters all had been marked personal and confidential.

Smoking By Preachers Arouses Discussion at London Convention

LONDON, July 28.—Whether ministers should smoke, is arousing discussion among clergymen as a result of a question asked at a recent convention of Methodist ministers as to whether it is Christian-like for ministers to smoke.

"It all depends on what you smoke," said one minister. "I smoke a cigar to the glory of God."

Rev. F. C. Spurr, Regent's Park Methodist church, confessed he smoked a pipe in his study, but didn't think it wise for ministers to smoke in public.

Another favors it for the reason that a good smoke helps to get a man's soul.

"Personally I haven't smoked a dozen cigarettes in my life," said Dr. P. B. Meyer, "and that was in Turkey where it would have been an act of great discourtesy not to smoke with your host."

But I don't object to smoking if by so doing a minister can get nearer a man's soul?"

If people realized how much tannin there is in common tea, they wouldn't Tannin is bad in two ways: it smothers the teastomach.

Fine tea has the real tea-flavor, and just a trace of tannin—not noticeable unless you boil it, which is no way to make tea.

MOST CHAMPIONS NATIVES OF AMERICA

Fitzsimmons and Burns Only
Title Holders Not Born
In United States

BY H. C. HAMILTON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, July 28.—There have been eight world's heavyweight champions since John L. Sullivan claimed and defended the title against all comers, and of the whole lot only two of them were born in countries other than the United States. And these two, Robert Fitzsimmons and Tommy Burns, practically claimed the United States as their home.

Of the six born in this country, no two were born in the same state, although James J. Corbett and James J. Jeffries both are best known to the world as Californians.

Three of these champions were born in June—two of them recognized as remarkable fighters, Fitzsimmons and the present champion, Jack Dempsey.

John L. Sullivan was born in Roxbury, Mass., in October.

Corbett was born in San Francisco, in September.

Robert Fitzsimmons was born in England in June.

James J. Jeffries was born in Carroll, Ohio, in April.

Tommy Burns was born in Canada in June.

Jack Johnson was born in Texas
in March.

Jess Willard was born in Kansas
in December.

Jack Dempsey was born in Colorado in June.

Burns was scarcely recognized as a heavyweight champion, inasmuch as Jeffries returned to the ring to defend the title, after having once cast it off. Still, he was recognized to an extent before he met Jack Johnson and was defeated, so he is included in the record. As a matter of fact, only one champion came from a country other than this, and he was Fitzsimmons, if we pass up the claim of Burns.

The popular belief is that the champions have not been hugely built men, but the opposite is the case. Jeffries was first of the man-mountain type, but he was not so tall as Corbett.
Fitzsimmons was not a big man, but Jack Johnson was more than six feet and scaled better than 200.

Jess Willard, of course, topped them all by many inches and pounds.
But Dempsey is a large man. He stands more than six feet and his net bout undoubtedly will see him well over the 200 pound mark.

A good "little" man has small chance with the heavyweights of today, for they have learned too much.
Fitzsimmons was a freak and probably never will be duplicated.

Fred Clarke Ex-Baseball Manager Is Trapshooter

Fred Clarke

Noted Athlete Now Head of Kansas Sportsmen's Association

KANSAS CITY, Kas., July 28.—Ten years ago Fred Clarke won a world's series pennant. He was one of the greatest managers in major league baseball history. He has been out of the game but a few years and yet who would look at the picture and connect him with baseball?

Clarke has taken up the less strenuous pastime—trap shooting. He is president of the Kansas State Sportsmen's Association. Fred doesn't boast of being as good a trap shooter as he was baseball general, but he does fairly well. He broke 246 birds in the state titular meet.

TWO COME BACK FIGHTS TO BE ON TONIGHT

Johnny Kilbane to Defend
Title; Britton and Tex
Lewis to Clash

BY H. C. HAMILTON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, July 28.—There will be two come-back efforts in pugilism tonight.

One of these comes with the breath of old-time championship battles; the other merely raises the question of whether or not Ted Lewis was defeated by Jack Britton on merit or was ill, as he claimed after the knockout.

More interest centers in the six-round bout at Philadelphia between Joe Fox and Johnny Kilbane, for it is Kilbane's first honest-to-goodness effort to battle since Benny Leonard knocked him out in Philadelphia. Kil-bane himself regards the match as a sort of trial, for he is planning on going into heavier action providing he can prove himself in a bout with Fox that he possesses his old-time cuming and punching form.

Fox is a high class scrapper. He has a reputation in England hardly second to Kilbane's in this country.
That he will give the world's featherweight champion a tough argument for a while at least, is a foregone conclusion. But with Kilbane in anything like old-time form, the visiting featherweight will have little chance.

The bout between Jack Britton and Tex Lewis in Jersey City is the twentieth meeting between the pair and folks have ceased to take seriously their efforts, despite the fact that Britton forgot himself and knocked Lewis out the last time they met.
There seems to be some animosity between them, engendered by the last fight, an edge boxers are promising various kinds of damage to each other.
It even is reported they have made a side bet of $10,000.

BUD ANDERSON MAY RECOVER FROM HURTS

VANCOUVER, Wash., July 28.— Bud Anderson has a fair chance to recover, it was said at the hospital today, where the ex-boxer is receiving treatment for injuries received as a result of a practical joke.
One of Anderson's companion workers at a shipyard turned a compressed air gun on him.

EASTERN COURT STARS CLASH AT SEABRIGHT

NEW YORK, July 28.—Eastern tennis stars gathered today at the Sea-bright, Cricket and Lawn Tennis Club here for the annual tennis tournament

AN INVESTMENT PAYING BETTER THAN 8%

That dollar you put away in the savings bank a year ago is worth approximately seventy-five cents today. If you do not invest it, if you leave it dormant, it will be worth perhaps only fifty cents.

Next year—no sooner—we may look for a standardizing of prices. Labor conditions ought to be settled by then; manufacturers ought to be caught up with their orders by then. This does not mean that high prices will come down, but it does mean that prices will stop soaring. It means that you will know where you are at.

MAKING YOUR DOLLAR WORTH MORE.

To repeat: If you hold on to your dollar it will become worth less. On the other hand, if you invest it in property, land, mortgages, stocks or merchandise, it will be worth more. If, for instance, you invest it in merchandise your dollar will increase in value from 10 percent to 30 percent, perhaps more.

Here's a concrete example:

At this time you are interested in cool things to wear—say a Palm Beach Suit, a Panama Hat or a soft collar. We can sell you the genuine Palm Beach material today at $15.00 per suit. Such a suit as this will last you at least three summer seasons. You will not need to buy a suit next summer nor the following.

Now comes this question: "How much will my Palm Beach be worth next season?"

We cannot tell you exactly. We think, from notifications by the manufacturer, it will cost you $18.00. We will guarantee it will cost you not less than $16.50—an increase of 10 percent to 20 percent.

You will save—if you buy now—10 percent to 20 percent on one suit.
Your dollar, invested now in a Palm Beach Suit, will be worth $1.10 to $1.20
next season.

The same may be said of a Panama Hat or an all-wool, fast color suit which we can sell you today at $30, $32.50 and $35.00, and which, next season, will sell around $40 to $45.00.

Surprise Wedding

The Presbyterian manse on North Glassell was the scene of a delightful wedding Saturday at 1 o'clock when Miss Lois E. Kelly became the bride of Elmer C. Ensign. Rev. Pearson officiated with the impressive ring ceremony. The wedding was a quiet one and will doubtless be a surprise to their many friends. Mrs. Carl Pister, sister of the groom, was the only witness. The happy couple departed for realms unknown soon after the ceremony.

Gillogly Home

Sherman Gillogly, former Orange business man, recently returned from overseas service, with the Y. M. C. A. is home.

Gillogly returned to his home in Monrovia July 10, having landed in New York last month. He spent about nine months in France, arriving there in October last year.

Among the great variety of his experiences was the sensation of being on a torpedoed ship. The transport Cedric, on which he went across, was hit by a torpedo just before reaching Liverpool, and the troops were ordered to their stations at the boats. The damage, however, was not serious and the Cedric made port under her own power.

Gillogly was stationed with a balloon company and received very high commendation for his work with the men, which was particularly difficult after the armistice. He has a number of letters from army officers and Y. M. C. A. officials commending his service.

SEAL BEACH YACHT RACE PROVES CLOSE

SEAL BEACH, July 28.—A larger crowd than the one which saw the Fourth of July races witnessed the Seal Beach yacht races yesterday. The South Coast Yacht Club competed with the Newport Yacht Club and the former aggregation got both races, the yacht race and the motor-boat speed contest.

The yacht race was a very close one. The Mischief I and the Mischief II were but a very few seconds apart at the finish and it looked like a tie. Both boats were from the South Coast Club, and, after much debate, it was decided that the Mischief I had won. The motor-boat affair was annexed by the Mary Gill Two, Jimmie Reynolds, driver. The Campbell, S. C. Y. C., was second, Doc Wilson, driver.

In the afternoon diving events for the men, Clyde Swendsen of the L. A. A. C. was first and Haig Prieste, L. A. A. C., second. In the 220-yard swim G. Sylvester was first, B. Howard, second, and F. Elson, third. In the 100-yard breast stroke Ike Messenger claimed first and B. Flint, second.

For the ladies Aileen Allen won in the diving and the 100-yard dash went to Gladys Carpenter, with Aileen Allen a good second. In the junior event Merritt Leech was first, defeating Cameron Coffey, who was second. The life guards' 100-yard breast-stroke swim was captured by W. H. Warburton, the Seal Beach life preserver.

600 BARRELS OIL WASTED DAILY IN SPRAY

ANAHEIM, July 28.—They have liquid air over at La Habra.

That would not be so bad, but the liquid is of an oleaginous nature, and while it rests securely on everything it touches, it does not rest well in the minds of the people.

And all of this unnatural condition is due to the Standard-Murphy gusher that is throwing spray a hundred feet into the air, and this spray is wafted by the winds for a distance of three miles all over in and around La Habra and its people and on all their chattels.

The drivers of the White buses tell the story as they pull into Anaheim with their windshields spotted with oil from the spray of the gusher which is deposited as they pass through La Habra.

It is reported that the Standard is losing 600 barrels of oil a day through the oil being broken into a spray as it is shot through the derrick and carried off by the winds.

There is no apparent diminution in the pressure today.

BURIED IN HARD DIRT, FROG IS WITHOUT EYES

ANAHEIM, July 28.—While excavating for a well on a ranch west of this city, Jack Warner released a live frog which was imbedded in the rock twenty feet under ground. The earth was so hard that it was necessary for Warner to use a pick. A peculiar thing about the frog was that it had no eyes, although there was a place for them. On being placed in a bucket of water the animal died immediately.

JOSEPH DAUSER WAR VETERAN, IS DEAD

ANAHEIM, July 28.—Joseph Dauser of 321 North Clementine street, one of Anaheim's oldest and highly respected citizens, was called into the Great Beyond Friday night after an illness of about four weeks. Deceased was 77 years of age, was a native of Wurtemberg, Germany, and came to the United States when about 17 years of age, serving through the civil war. Thirty years ago he, with his family, moved to Anaheim to reside and for many years was a successful rancher. Besides the widow he leaves a son, Bernard Dauser, and a daughter, Mrs. Frank Baum. Until about four weeks ago, when a complication of diseases set in, he hardly knew what sickness meant, as he had a wonderfully strong constitution.

Funeral services were held this morning at 9 o'clock at the St. Boniface Catholic church, Rev. P. Brown celebrating requiem mass. Interment was in New Calvary cemetery, Los Angeles.

No Citricola Scale in Orange County Asserts E. H. Paddock

So far as known, there is no Citricola scale in Orange county. This was the statement today of E. H. Paddock, deputy county horticultural commissioner, controverting declarations that this scale does exist in some groves, credited to an agent for a certain brand of spray material.

Some citrus growers, it is reported, were agitated when told by this agent that the dreaded Citricola scale existed in their groves, but in every known case an investigation by the horticultural commissioners has proven that the scale is what is known as Soft Brown scale, the least harmful scale of all the common varieties.

The commissioners point out that it is to the growers' advantage to use pest-control materials in all cases which have proven their worth and are recommended by those who have made a close study of the problem, rather than simply to take the statement of some agent who has a particular kind of material to sell.

WORLD TRIP IN LITTLE BOAT IS FAILURE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 28.—Im-poverished, wounded in battle, but with a story of adventure, that rivals even the exploits of Sir Francis Drake, from whom he claims descent, Francis Drake, 53, is today enroute to Seattle, after an illstarred attempt to sail around the world alone in a little schooner.

The tiny vessel, called the Sir Francis, left Seattle four years ago. After passing through the Panama canal and reaching Halifax, he docked his craft and enlisted in the Canadian army. Twice he was wounded. Returning from France, Drake refitted his vessel and started again. Storms beset him in southern waters, and his little schooner was wrecked thirty miles from Salina Cruz, Mexico. Before he could reach that port, bandits robbed him of his possessions, taking even his clothes. At Salina Cruz, reached after a terrible struggle, Drake was imprisoned as a member of an anti-government faction.

The steamer Northland, visiting the port, carried Drake to San Pedro, Calif., and the crew clothed him and loaned him money. Other friends here came to his assistance so he could reach Seattle.

RE-BUILDING OF FRANCE BEGUN SAYS REUTER

Register Man, Saw Patient Farmers Returning to No Man's Land

Sunburned by a voyage of twenty-three days crossing the Atlantic in a freighter bearing German war relics, smiling with the joy that comes to every returned soldier upon arriving home, Herman Reuter reached home yesterday from France.

Before leaving France, with an ordinance detachment sent out to collect war relics, Reuter had an opportunity to observe the spirit with which the French are getting into the harness for the reconstruction of their country. He declares that war-ridden though France was, she is not bemoaning her losses to the extent of allowing sorrow to paralyze her. "The indomitable will of the French is carrying them on."

Reuter, son of Mrs. L. Reuter of 909 Grand avenue, was on the Register news staff when in August, 1917, he enlisted and soon afterward he crossed the Atlantic. His brother, Ernest, who went over with him, was put into the motor corps and is still with the army occupation. Herman was stationed much of the time at Neufchateau.

"With the same dogged persistence and unwavering determination which carried them through the war to victory," said Reuter this morning, "the people of France are going forward with the work of reconstruction, returning to their shell-torn farms, to their coal mines, to their shops."

"It is a heart-breaking task that confronts the people of France—a task that will not be completed within many years—but it is a task that will be carried out thoroughly, as thoroughly as were the tasks of war."

"One of the most pitiful sights in France during the months immediately following the signing of the armistice was the peasants returning to their homes in the devastated territory. Sorrow was to be read in the faces of those patiently plodding pilgrims one met along the roads leading to the shell-torn regions where desolation and destruction had taken the place of order and peace. But there was no discouragement in their eyes—only a firm, indomitable will, and faith in the power of labor to bring readjustment and a return of a part of the lost happiness."

Germans Willing Workers

"While I was making my last trips to the former front with my commanding officer there were thousands of German prisoners at work in the fields around about St. Mihiel, Verdun and northward along the old battle lines into Belgium. For the most part the Germans appeared willing workers and more often than not they were unguarded. They worked side by side with the French farmer, helping him put in his crops. Hundreds of other Germans were at work filling up the trenches and rolling up the endless miles of rusty, sinister-looking barbed wire."

"The work of rehabilitation in France will take a very long time but agriculturally readjustments will come about much more rapidly than might at first be supposed. Of course, many farms have been practically irretrievably ruined, but for the most part the farmers can begin tilling their soil with comparatively little preliminary work, save in those sections where the fighting was heaviest. The greatest problem with the French people now and for years to come, as I understand it, is the industrial problem. Transportation facilities have been tripled, to begin with, and the coal mines in the northern part of the country cannot be put into productive shape for some years."

"The loss of man power during the war was something enormous and is making itself felt during the work of reconstruction. "But in spite of all discouragement and seemingly insurmountable obstacles, the fighting spirit of the French is at work and I have no doubt that miracles will be wrought in France during the next twenty-five years. The same spirit that helped France to recover so quickly after the war of 1870 is still there, only stronger, if anything, and though the tasks before the people are gigantic they will be accomplished."

"Yes, the French people are not sorry that their homeland is being evacuated by the armies of the Allies. The French are deathly tired. For years they have had foreign soldiers on their soil and it is only natural that the French should have been somewhat impatient with the length of time it took to return the Allied armies to their own countries. However, in spite of this impatience, there is deep gratitude in the heart of every Frenchman for what his allies did for him during the time of stress. Relationships have been born between the United States and France which will never perish. It is safe to say that the Yank will never again be misunderstood in France."

Y. M. C. A. Much Maligned
"A few words about the welfare organizations in France. The Y. M. C. A. has been considerably maligned by the American soldiers, chiefly, I believe, because of a misunderstanding on their part of the conditions under which the Y. M. C. A. worked. One of the chief causes of complaint, as I understand it, was that the 'Y' overcharged the soldiers in many instances for canteen goods. There probably were a good many cases where this occurred, but it should be remembered that everything that was sold by the Y. M. C. A. was obtained through the Quartermaster Department, that the 'Y' had to pay the cost of transportation, and that the 'Y' in its canteen service was working entirely under regulations and supervision. No doubt there were just causes for complaint, but considering the scope of the work done by this organization, the vast number of its employees, and the actual good done by it, there seems to be hardly a doubt that a share of the criticism launched against it is unjust."

"There was a stimulating spirit of service among all the welfare organizations. All of them worked under difficulties and I think they should be given an equal share of credit for what they accomplished. The Red Cross workers were wonderful. In canteens at almost every railway station of importance in France Red Cross women were on hand, day and night, ready to serve refreshments to the hungry, travel-worn soldiers. The Salvation Army, while its range of activities was limited as compared with some of the other organizations, did splendid work, as did every other organization. They all deserve credit. "I worked about Santa Ana and Orange county. Before I went into the service I had become so accustomed to hearing my home town boosted that I had become somewhat phlegmatic about it all—took it as a matter of course, or as something not to be given too much consideration. But since I have returned—after passing through hundreds of cities and towns en route from the Atlantic coast to California—such phrases as "Orange county, the richest little county in America," have taken on a new significance. This is God's country—I am glad to get back."

LAYING LINOLEUM IN THE COURTHOUSE

The county clerk today did business under difficulties. The carpet was rolled up on one side, stacks and stacks of superior court files lined the inside of the counter at least half way round, and desks and the file cabinets themselves were not in their accustomed places. At first glance, it looked like an earthquake had jarred things loose, and there was dust and commotion in the air.

The whole trouble may be laid to the Stroup-Barnes Furniture Company of Anaheim, which was engaged today in covering the floor of the clerk's office with linoleum. In order to do this, it was necessary to move the desks and also the large file cabinet, which was finally done by half a dozen men after the case had been lightened by lifting out the individual files. Jailor Budge Lacy and some of his guests performed invaluable service when the time came for moving the heavier furniture. Linoleum was also laid on the floor of Department 1 of the superior court.

M. ALVARADO TALKED HIMSELF INTO JAIL

Misimo Alvarado talked himself into jail before Justice Cox today, when he went into the courtroom to get Cox's aid in patching up his matrimonial difficulties. Alvarado, it seems, was married a year ago in Los Angeles, his eloping bride being 16 years old at that time, and in a few months left her. She was ill with flu and pneumonia when he left. Since that time a baby has been born, which is now two months old.

Alvarado had been in the northern part of the state and nothing was heard of him until his return yesterday. He tried to get his wife to live with him again, but neither she nor her parents would consent. Then Alvarado decided possibly Justice Cox could make an order forcing his wife to live with him again, and all parties were in court today.

The girl said she didn't want to live with the man after the way he had acted. The man said he could support her but could not pay $10 a month for the support of the baby if they remained separated. Furthermore, Alvarado said if she should find his wife with anybody else he might "commit homicide." He talked so much on this line that Cox decided he was not a fit man to remain at large, and ordered him to jail on a charge of non-support brought by his wife. Today another charge, non-support of child, was sworn to by Mary Alvarado, and the man's preliminary examination was set for August 12 at 2 p. m. Bail was fixed at $1000, and Alvarado will remain in jail pending a court disposition of his case.

ROBED IN NIGHT DRESS, CATCHES BURGLAR

R. L. Rafter Nabs Thief In the Early Hours of
This Morning

Scantily clad, R. L. Rafter at an early hour this morning chased a burglar for three blocks and brought the would be thief to halt by threatening to shoot him, when the only thing he had in his hand that resembled a firearm was a flashlight. The burglar, a Mexican, gave the name of Jesus Rivera, and he was turned over to Officers Boynton and Cravath by Rafter.

Rafter lives at 317 East First street, on the corner of French. He had occasion at 1 o'clock this morning to go into the back part of his house and while there heard a noise. He thought that his boy, who sleeps on the porch, had fallen out of bed. Pulling the porch electric light on, he saw a Mexican standing in the back yard. The Mexican darted from a shed in the rear.

Rafter hurriedly donned his trousers and gave chase. The Mexican ran out on French, then to First and west on First with Rafter trailing close behind. Rafter proved to be some sprinter. Getting near enough to command him to halt, Rafter did so, and the fellow stopped at the corner of Spurgeon with both hands in the air. Then his captor led him to the police station.

The Mexican made some excuse that he was looking for Mr. Smith and had gotten into the wrong place by mistake. To the officers he said he was looking for two men.

SEIDEL'S MARKET IS NEARING COMPLETION

Henry Seidel is a happy man, and justly so, for his new market on West Fourth street adjoining his present place of business is fast being completed. The finishing touches remain to be put on, but even a casual inspection will show the "class" which may properly be claimed for the market when it is opened for business. The large Economic refrigeration plant, installed by O. C. Logan of Glendale, is already in and was tried out Saturday with very satisfactory results. It will keep all the showcases and fish case, as well as the large storage box, in a constant state of refrigeration. The handsome showcases are being put in place by the Weber Showcase and Fixture Co. ## CAMP PARKS ARE RECOGNIZED BY SECRETARIES AS WORTHY

Association of Boosters Meet In Monthly Session at Newport Beach

That public camping grounds, properly maintained, with every facility and convenience possible provided for the auto touring parties, are to become big advertising features for Southern California, is the opinion of the Southern California men who are directing the publicity campaigns of the various communities in the Southland—the secretaries of Chambers of Commerce and improvement associations.

The camping grounds was the theme of discussion at the meeting of the Secretaries' Association of Southern California held Saturday at Balboa with the Newport Beach Chamber of Commerce as host. Between fifty and sixty men and women were present, and at the business session following luncheon at the Balboa pavilion, the secretaries discussed many matters of importance to all of Southern California. It was declared to have been one of the most interesting business sessions held in recent months by the association.

That the secretaries all have the broad view that what is good for one community is good for all of Southern California was clearly manifested in the brief talks made by the boosters. The spirit of co-operating in a general plan for the advancement of Southern California permeated all the discussions.

Aside from the camping grounds, one of the most interesting subjects brought up was the organization of women's auxiliaries to Chambers and the institution of a Junior Chamber of Commerce. The idea was advanced by Secretary Boardman of Riverside, who stated that his board had been considering these matters, and he wanted to know if other secretaries had ever had any experience with such auxiliaries. It was something new for the secretaries for none of them had never heard of it discussed or suggested locally, although such auxiliaries do exist in a few places in the East.

May Admit Women
"We are considering the proposition of admitting ladies to membership by the creation of an auxiliary," said Boardman. "We would admit them at a nominal fee and thus increase our membership and interest the ladies in our work."

"A Junior Chamber, for boys from 16 to 19 years of age, also is under discussion. The purpose would be to discipline and teach the young men the work of the Chamber so that when they enter upon business life in our community, they will be first-class material for taking up the work as the older men retire."

"We are very favorably impressed with the plans and in all probability will put them into execution in the near future."

Every secretary in attendance made some report as to progress of Chamber of Commerce activities in his community. The community spirit—co-operative effort—dominated the talks, and evidenced the fact that the secretaries are working hard for the elimination of sectional jealousies, with the one big view of boosting Southern California.

Boardman gave strong impression to this sentiment when he said that the

Half Dozen Are Petitioning For U. S. Citizenship

A HALF DOZEN Orange county residents have recently filed petitions for citizenship. First papers were taken out by Eugene Sarabere, aged 40, and a tailor of Huntington Beach. He is a native of France, and came to America in September, 1912. Petitions for final papers were filed by the following:
Sidney Elson Saunby, 33, rancher of Tustin and native of London, Ontario, Canada, who came to the United States in April, 1913.
Thomas George Allen, 40, gardener of R. D. 1, Huntington Beach and native of Guernsey, Channel Islands, England, who came here in December, 1916.
Emil Gruner, 33, cabinet maker and farmer, of Harper, and native of Niklosdorf, Austria, who came to America in May, 1913.
Julius Gottlieb Kley, 29, machinist helper, of Anaheim, and native of Neckarwestheim, Germany, who came in March, 1906.
Herbert Hall, 33, auto trimmer, of Santa Ana, and native of Essex Centre, Canada, who moved to the United States in August, 1905.

people of Riverside feel that Newport Harbor is just as much theirs as it is Orange county's.

"We of Riverside feel that the harbor belongs as much to us as to Orange county," said Boardman. "We feel that if the county develops a harbor here it will mean as much to us as it does to Orange county. It will form a great outlet for Riverside and San Bernardino counties. The development of any great enterprise anywhere in Southern California is of advantage to all of Southern California."

Harbor to Help South
"The harbor will not only help Orange county but it will help all of Southern California. I am glad to know that there is such bright prospects for the development of Newport Bay into a harbor."

F. M. Renfro, secretary of the San Bernardino Chamber and the Orange Show, gave a brief outline of what the next show would be, making the first public announcement of its character. It will be quite a departure from past shows, and will make a vivid comparison between the cold of the East and the balmy clime of Southern California. Visitors will enter through an "ice house" simulating eastern frozen sections, and from this will pass into Southern California atmosphere, with warbling birds, citrus and deciduous fruits, "angles," etc.

R. L. Sheahan, of Venice, announced a big aerial circus at Venice on next Sunday at the formal dedication of the Ince Aviation Field. It is from this field that the start will be made by planes entering the trans-Pacific fight for the $50,000 prize offered by Ince. Aeroplanes and hydroplanes will fly at the beach in large numbers on next Sunday. The next monthly meeting of the association also will be held at Venice.

The visitors were taken over the bay before and after lunch, the afternoon trip being up the new channel to Newport Beach and then to the Upper Bay, where there is a magnificent expanse of water susceptible to development that will make it one of the finest sites for a naval training school or submarine base that can be found on the coast. The forenoon trip was out to the jetty. The secretaries were surprised and delighted at the wonderful bay and were quick to grasp the possibilities of the development of a harbor of note at Newport.

VETERANS' CAMP AT HUNTINGTON BEACH OPENS TOMORROW

Camp Jason J. Shepard Welcomes Grand Old Boys at Arbamar Tuesday Night

Arbamar, the camp grounds at Huntington Beach, will tomorrow go into possession of the Southern California Veterans' Association, whose members and their relatives will be in charge for the next ten days, until August 8. This is the thirty-second annual encampment of the association, and will be officially known as Camp Jason J. Shepard.

The attendance, which usually reaches 2500, is expected to be enhanced this year by the presence of many young veterans of the war with Germany, who will attend this year for the first time. The usual large delegation of Orange county veterans and members of the W. R. C., Ladies of the G. A. R., Woman's Auxiliary, Daughters of Veterans and Sons of Veterans will attend.

Quartermaster A. B. Paul of Santa Ana, who is in charge of the registration, left early this morning for the camp grounds to take charge of the arrangements so that all will be in readiness when the bulk of the veterans arrive tomorrow. He reported a reservation for tents in excess of previous years' orders, indicating a larger attendance.

The Woman's Relief Corps of Huntington Beach will be in charge of the welcome service tomorrow evening, with addresses of welcome by E. E. French, president of the Huntington Beach Chamber of Commerce. The response will be by Commander T. M. Barrett. All evening meetings begin at 7 o'clock. The complete program for tomorrow night is as follows:

Huntington Beach Municipal Band, "Star Spangled Banner" and "Howdy Folks"; address of welcome, E. E. French; flag drill, directed by Miss Mitchell; violin solo, "America," Betty Olson; dance, directed by Miss Price; reading, Ruth Mitchell; "Pop's" Junior Band; Spanish dance, Jane Thatcher, Edith Heffner, Thomas Van Talbert, Jolly Jockey Dance, Alice Hill; fancy dance; band, "Indian War Dance."

The encampment committees of the W. R. C. are as follows:
Reception, Huntington Beach W. R. C.; Memorial, Mamie Deems, Ella Renwick; Entertainment, Jessie Ford, Ida V. Herendeen; Children's Day, May Watson, Sadie Greenland, Cora Byram; Finance, Hannah McKeen, Priscilla Howdyshell, Mary Buddington; Fancy Table, Helen Barton, Hattie Evans, Fannie Hayes; Membership Register, Hannah Brindell, Nancy Critchlow; Visitors' Register, Lydia Mallock, Susie Peck. Decoration, Huntington Beach W. R. C.; Badges, Anna Gamble, Mary Coffman; Prisoners of War, Sadie Waterman, Grace Willard, Julia Hobart.

Other Veterans Gatherings
Besides the Huntington Beach camp, there are two other gatherings of veterans this year at which Orange county veterans will be represented. The first is the National Encampment of the United Spanish War Veterans, to be held in San Francisco September 2 to September 4. One hundred from Southern California are expected to attend this gathering. A special reduced railroad fare has been arranged and a special car will be attached to the regular day train leaving the S. P. depot at Los Angeles Sunday, August 31, at 8 a. m., for the benefit of the Southland delegation.

The next encampment in order is the national G. A. R. gathering, to be held at Columbus, Ohio, September 8 to September 13, inclusive. An attendance of ten to fifteen thousand is expected, and two or three trains will be made up in Southern California to transport the veterans and their party to Columbus. A special railroad rate of 1 cent a mile has been arranged for delegates, it is reported.

FIGHT ARENA BUILT FOR SAN JOSE SHOWS

SAN JOSE, Cal., July 28.—Enter San Jose into active arena life. Contracts have been issued by the Merchants' Athletic Club for the construction of an arena with a seating capacity of 1,500 persons.
With all the larger cities on the coast holding weekly or bi-weekly boxing bouts, the demand for fistfights of the "smoker" variety became so great here that D. M. Donaghy and Ed Arnold with a company of promoters drew up plans for the arena. Seats in the downstairs section of the club have already been reserved for the opening show, which is expected within a month.

Lawson Machine to Be First of One Hundred That May Be Built

MILWAUKEE, July 28.—Every day they're getting larger. The newest airplane for commercial purposes now being built is the Lawson machine, which is nearing completion here and will be tested out within a short time.

The machine is a plane de luxe. It is designed to carry 26 persons who will be warm and comfortable in a luxurious cabin, fitted up something on the order of a parlor car, but of much lighter material.

The great plane is to be used for transcontinental service and is the first one of a hundred similar machines, Lawson plans to construct if the demand warrants it.

The plane will have a wing spread of 95 feet and will weigh seven tons. It will be driven by two Liberty motors of 400 horsepower each and is expected to develop a speed, when fully loaded, of 100 miles an hour.

ROY SHALTEN ALSO IN PACIFIC TODAY

When the great Pacific fleet which has passed through the Panama canal and is now in the Pacific, reaches its new station one of the happy sailormen aboard the U. S. destroyer Boggs will be Roy Shalten, son of Mrs. W. H. Moore, of 330 East Fourth street. That the Boggs, with Shalten aboard, is enroute to the Pacific with the big fleet is the information contained in a letter just received from him at Norfolk, Virginia, July 22, the day his vessel sailed for the Golden West. "I will soon see you, mother, and dear old Santa Ana," he wrote. He is bringing home views of Panama and other places of interest which he has visited. Shalten has been in New York on trips of twenty-one days each, one of which was concluded the middle of July.

EPISCOPAL DRIVE IS TO BE IN NOVEMBER

State organization work is rapidly being completed for the forthcoming nation-wide campaign of the Protestant Episcopal church for an increased and strengthened membership and for funds with which to carry out the Episcopal church's share in the work of world evangelization being undertaken by the various Christian churches.

While the church has set for itself a goal of $20,000,000 to be secured at the end of the drive in November, leaders point out that this is not the principal object of the campaign, which is primarily to arouse in every member of the Episcopal church the desire to aid the church in discharging its measure of the obligations imposed upon the Christian churches in the work of world reconstruction.

For the purposes of the campaign the United States has been divided into four general areas, the western area including the states of California, Washington, Oregon, Nevada, Arizona, Idaho, Utah and New Mexico. The eight states are again divided into divisions by dioceses and missionary districts, a total of thirteen in all, in charge of a committee which will act with the national headquarters in organizing the parochial committees to further the campaign.

ENROLLMENT IS INCREASED IN DESPITE FLU EPIDEMIC

Annual Report Shows Good Condition Generally In All Departments

In spite of difficulties encountered during the school year by reason of war conditions and the influenza epidemic, Santa Ana schools in the last year showed an increased enrollment of 161, including the kindergartens, or 182, not including the kindergartens. The schools of the city in general are in very good condition, as shown by the annual report of City School Superintendent J. A. Cranston. Financially, too, the schools are in good shape, as shown by the annual report of F. L. Andrews, secretary of the Santa Ana Board of Education.

Features of the year's work as outlined in Superintendent Cranston's report have been the success of the new Mexican school, the value of the institution of what is known as an opportunity room in which backward students are given special aid, the advancement of the general health of the children and the value of school gardens.

Cranston's Report

The annual report to the Board of Education by City School Superintendent Cranston follows:

"I have the pleasure to submit to you my annual report of the Santa Ana city schools for the year ending June 30, 1919.

The past year has been marked by quite unusual conditions and experiences in the life of pupils and teachers, but that experience, judging from newspaper reports, was shared by schools in all parts of our country.

Beginning later than usual in the fall, October 7, to enable our young people to assist in caring for the crops, we had just gotten nicely started when the influenza epidemic necessitated our closing for a month and after starting up the second time, we were obliged to close again for the same reason for two weeks, thus losing in all, six weeks of school time. Not only was the loss of school time, but many of our pupils and a few of our teachers fell victims to the disease. This involved an unusual amount of substitute work for the teachers and

Junior Red Cross Raises $11,000 During the War: Pupils Invest $100,000

THAT nearly $11,000 in cash was raised for war activities and that nearly $100,000 was invested in war securities by the pupils of the Santa Ana schools in the last year was shown by a report filed with the Santa Ana board of education by Miss Hazel Bemus, chairman of the Junior Red Cross of Santa Ana chapter, Red Cross. In addition to money raised and money invested, the pupils made and collected many thousands of refugee garments and other articles needed in war relief.

There was not a single call for service that was not quickly and gladly answered by the schools of Santa Ana.

Miss Bemus' report shows items of service for every school of the city. The totals shown on the report, for all of the schools of the city, follow:

There was not a single call for service that was not quickly and gladly answered by the schools of Santa Ana.

OWN YOUR OWN HOME

The Actual Experience of One Man

In January, 1900, one of our citizens borrowed money of the Home Mutual Building & Loan Association to build a home. In August, 1910, he completed his monthly payment of $20.00 and the mortgage was released. This citizen then took out 20 shares of monthly installment stock with a monthly payment of $20.00. The stock is worth today $3,097.40 and will be worth January, 1920, just 20 years after the loan was made (estimated) $3,327.60.

We do not need to tell you the story of the tenant who has paid $20.00 per month rent for the past 20 years.

ENROLLMENT FOR YEAR SHOWS INCREASE

a loss of time and energy to both teachers and pupils.

We were, therefore, obliged to readjust the work to meet the loss of time and crowd into thirty weeks about the amount of work we are accustomed to take thirty-six weeks to cover. However, our teachers and pupils with the hearty co-operation of parents, met the situation in a most commendable spirit and at the close of the year, June 27, the work in all lines and departments was completed in a very satisfactory way.

Such an experience, although very unfortunate, had at least one redeeming feature in that it necessitated teachers and pupils placing a higher valuation on time and concentrating their energies on the task before them. It is needless to say that the close of the school year found both teachers and pupils ready for a vacation.

Kindergarten
No other department of our school system was affected as much by the influenza as the kindergarten in the matter of attendance. Apparently mothers felt loath to run any chances and in many cases kept their little ones out of school for weeks. The result that the average daily attendance and the total enrollment were considerably below the records of the past few years.

While the influenza epidemic affected seriously the attendance in this department, there was sufficient evidence of a growing interest and appreciation upon the part of parents whose children have received training in this department.

It is a fact, much to be deplored, that in the great state of California the kindergarten work has so far failed of financial recognition from the state and county, leaving the burden entirely upon local school districts. It remains for the educators of our state and those who have given the subject serious thought to bring to the attention of our lawmakers the value and importance of kindergarten work in laying a foundation for a broad and well balanced education.

The kindergarten enrollment was:
Jefferson School—Boys, 21; girls, 16. Total, 37.
Lincoln School—Boys, 28; girls, 30. Total, 58.
McKinley School—Boys, 30; girls, 45. Total, 75.
Roosevelt School—Boys, 34; girls, 32. Total, 66.
Spurgeon School—Boys, 20; girls, 24. Total, 44.
Grand total—Boys 133, girls 151; all told, 284.
Average daily attendance in all schools 141; last year, 171; total enrollment last year, 305.

Elementary Schools
In our elementary schools, notwithstanding the effects of the influenza epidemic, the attendance and the work accomplished were most encouraging and satisfactory. The average daily attendance shows an increase of twenty-one over the previous year and an increase in the total enrollment of 154. The results in physical education the past year have surpassed our fondest hopes. The work from the kindergarten to and including the high school has proven most beneficial in producing better health and stronger bodies and this in turn, has had a beneficial effect upon the minds of our boys and girls.

Special mention should be made in this connection of our military training for the boys of our intermediate and high schools. Your gift of a fine flag to the company in our intermediate school making the best showing, and presentation of a beautiful loving cup by James C. Metzgar, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, to the company in the high school making the best showing, no doubt had a stimulating and beneficial effect in the high grade of work done by the cadet companies in both schools, but to Major Carrier, who had charge and directed the work in both schools is due in a large measure, the remarkable work accomplished during the past year.

Starting with boys in both schools, whose impression of military training was most unfavorable, he soon aroused an interest and enthusiasm in the work that eventually developed that high grade of discipline of which our citizens may feel justly proud.

Home Gardens
It is with commendable pride that I call attention to the home garden work accomplished the past semester, regretting only my inability to report the work of the Sixth, Seventh and Eighth grades. In the rush of school work towards the close of the past school year the teachers in charge of that work overlooked giving in their reports. However, the work of the pupils in the lower grades will serve as a basis upon which to judge of the work of the upper grades, which I feel very sure was most commendable and satisfactory.

Opportunity Room
A year ago, upon my recommendation, a separate room at the Washington school was set apart for a class of pupils who through one cause or another had fallen behind in their work. My recommendation was made in the belief that every pupil has a right to his fair share of the teacher's personal attention, but it is not fair to the other pupils to continue to give a disproportionate share to a very backward pupil, hence the importance of a separate room.

The plan has accomplished all and more than we had hoped. By limiting the number in the room to eighteen, the teacher in charge has been able to give each pupil such attention and direction as his case seemed to require and by transferring those backward pupils from the regular classes, the pupils in the regular classes have not been handicapped by their teachers having to take too much time of the recitation to assist backward pupils.

Upon a closer examination into the needs of individual pupils during the past year and especially into the needs of that class of backward pupils, we have found enough pupils to warrant the opening of another room. Out of an attendance of over twenty-two hundred pupils in our elementary schools, it is not surprising that we should have enough pupils for two opportunity rooms. On the contrary, it is quite surprising that we have so few backward pupils needing special attention.

New Mexican Schools
It is a source of satisfaction and gratification that the long-planned-for and looked-for separate schools for special Mexican pupils are in the process of erection. The location of those buildings in the close proximity to the homes of Mexican families enhances the value of those schools to our Mexican people.

The setting apart the past year of the Manual Training and Domestic Science grade building to accommodate those Mexican children of the first three years of school life, who were unfamiliar with the English language and who because of irregular attendance had fallen hopelessly, for the time being, behind the regular classes, proved to be most beneficial to those pupils. They were most happy and contented in their school life and when some of them had advanced sufficiently to be transferred to the regular classes, they were quite unwilling to make the change.

The teachers in charge of the work of that school gave freely of their time and energy in order that those pupils handicapped by language and irregular attendance might have the best possible advantages. It is gratifying to know that the same teachers will have charge of the work in the new schools under more favorable conditions. A work room in each school will enable the teachers to direct the hands as well as the heads of pupils along practical lines.

On account of the need of the Mexican children in assisting their parents during the walnut season, I would recommend that the opening of the Mexican schools be postponed until October sixth, about four weeks after the opening of our other schools. This would necessitate running the Mexican school later in the school year.

School Attendance
The attendance of the elementary schools, by schools, follows:
Jefferson School—Boys, 112; girls, 92; total, 204; average daily attendance, 162.
Fifth Street—Boys, 26; girls, 27;

ASKING CALIFORNIA FOR 500 MEN A MONTH

Headquarters of the shipping board's recruiting service has appealed to California to furnish 500 men a month for the new American merchant marine. Although sea volunteers have been coming forward in large numbers, the response up to date is not large enough to guarantee full crews for the new ships, declares Henry Avila, supervisor of shipping board sea training on the Pacific coast.

Men who volunteer for the merchant marine service are given six weeks' training aboard the ship Iris, which is stationed on the Pacific coast. While in training they are paid at the rate of $30 a month. On being graduated from the Iris the students are assigned to deep water ships at the high wages now prevailing in the American merchant marine.
